METHOD AND APPARATUS FOR EFFICIENT CALCULATING DISTANCE METRIC

ABSTRACT

5   A method and an apparatus for determining the log-likelihood ratio of a received signal. The log-likelihood ratio is determined by calculating distance between the received symbol and closest constellation point matching a bit and the distance between the received symbol and the 10   closest constellation point not matching the bit.